Some 6,000 pupils expected to answer opening bells

City, county schools to open Tuesday

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Summer vacation will end Tuesday for more than 6,000 students in the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace school districts.

Doors at 12 schools in the Miami Trace School District will swing open Tuesday to greet approximately 3,700 pupils, while about 2,350 are expected to report for the opening of classes in the Washington C.H. system.

Officials of the two school districts said expected enrollment figures "are about the same" as last year with only a slight decrease anticipated in the county school district.

Guy M. Foster, superintendent of the Miami Trace School District, said he expects 50 less students this year due to a decreasing enrollment trend in the county system over the past two or three years.

Both school districts will be sending more than 100 students each to the Laurel Oaks Joint Vocational School in Wilmington.

The Fayette Progressive School, located in the former Sunnyside Elementary School building on S. Fayette Street, will also open classes on Tuesday, according to school administrator Carl Whitaker.

A staff meeting for teachers will be held at 9 a.m. August 29.

The Fayette Adult Training Center will be in operation from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. School-age classes will be held from 8:45 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.; half-time early childhood classes will be 9:30 to 12 noon.

School lunches will be priced at 50 cents for students and 80 cents for adult training students and staff members. Extra milk will be eight cents for students and 11 cents for staff members.

In general, full day sessions will be held in both of the local school districts on Tuesday. The exception is in the city school district with first graders and kindergarten students.

First grade students in Washington C.H. will attend only morning half-day classes during the first week of school to enable teachers to make home visitations with parents in the afternoon. Bus transportation will be provided to deliver the first grade pupils to their homes immediately following lunch, according to Washington C.H. School District Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor.

The Washington C.H. School District will operate with the same kindergarten program as last year with morning and afternoon sessions at Belle-Aire and Eastside elementary schools and at the Middle School building. There will be an afternoon only session at Cherry Hill elementary school.

City kindergarten students will have only mini sessions on Tuesday. The session will be spent in an orientation period with both children and parents. All parents of kindergarten students in the city district are asked to attend the orientation session and provide transportation home for their children. The kindergarten students will have full sessions Wednesday.

In contrast to the city program, the Miami Trace School District will have a full day session for kindergarten pupils. County kindergarten students will be transported on the elementary bus routes on days assigned in a letter to parents.

Classes at Washington Senior High School will open at 8:31 a.m. and close at 3:10 p.m. The Washington C.H. Middle School will follow a schedule of 8:23 a.m. until 2:55 p.m. Due to complexities within the bus schedule, city elementary schools will be operating with staggered opening and closing times. The schedule for the city elementary schools will be:

Eastside, 8:40 a.m. to 2:40 p.m.; Rose Avenue, 8:45 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.; Cherry Hill, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and Belle-Aire, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

City kindergarten schedules are Belle Aire, 9:30 to 12, and 1 to 1:30; Middle School, 9 to 11:30 and 12 to 2:30; Eastside, 8:40 to 11:10 and 12:05 to 2:35; and Cherry Hill, 12:30 to 3 p.m.

In the Miami Trace School District, the high school, Eber Junior High School and Bloomingburg Elementary School will all open at approximately 8 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. The other elementary schools within the district will operate on a 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. schedule, Foster said.

Junior and senior students from both Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools who will be attending the Laurel Oaks Joint Vocational School in Wilmington will be transported by bus from their respective high schools at 8 a.m. daily.

School cafeterias in both school districts will be in operation on Tuesday, the two superintendents said. Lunch prices in the city system have been increased a nickel to 80 cents for adults. Student lunches are priced at 50 cents.

Meanwhile, there has been no increase in lunch prices in the county school system. Lunches are priced at 55 cents for elementary students, 60 cents for high school students, and 85 cents for adults. Ala carte items are available at the high school.

Perhaps the biggest change in either school district will be the implementation of a new breakfast program in two county elementary school buildings.

The breakfast program will be implemented at Jasper and Bloomingburg elementary schools. The breakfast price is 25 cents per person, Foster said.

Free lunches (and breakfasts at the two elementary schools) will be served in both districts this year for those who qualify under federal guidelines. Information concerning the free lunch programs will be distributed by the schools to parents.

City school officials have placed the possibility of an extensive curriculum revision as a high priority for the 1977-1978 school year, and a new reading series will head the way.

"We will be starting a new reading

Compromise reached in razing proposal

A compromise has been reached over a preliminary court fight involving the demolition of a privately owned building by the city of Washington C.H.

Following an initial hearing in Fayette County Common Pleas Court Thursday, a compromise was agreed to by the city and the building owner with the consent of Judge Evelyn Coffman. The agreement will allow the building to stand until at least Dec. 15.

The court hearing was held after a suit seeking an injunction to keep the city from demolishing a building located on the corner of Campbell and Delaware streets was filed by Jerry Miko, 625 Campbell St.

In June, the city ordered the demolition of the building which formerly housed the Friendly Corners Tavern.

The building was found to be in violation of the city's building code by City Inspector Glenn Tatman. Tatman said the building was in a bad state of disrepair.

In the suit, Miko stated that he would suffer irreparable harm if the city is allowed to tear down the structure.

The suit also claimed that Miko had started repairing the building to establish a tavern, and after repair work had begun the city contacted him saying the structure would be demolished.

At the hearing Thursday, the parties' two lawyers and Judge Coffman agreed that the former tavern had lost its non-conforming status. In other words, Miko could not open another tavern in the building without conforming to city and state regulations.

The building would have to receive a variance or zoning change from the city of Washington C.H. before a tavern could be opened. Miko would also have to acquire a state liquor license and the building would have to meet the state building code.

Miko will have until Dec. 15 to renovate the building into a tavern or for another type of use. He was also required to post a $2,500 bond which would cover the city's cost of demolishing the building if the December deadline is not met.

The former tavern was one of four buildings earmarked for demolition by the Washington C.H. City Council in June. One of the buildings was torn down by its owner shortly after Council authorized the demolition.

Two of the remaining three buildings were owned by Miko. One is the former tavern and the other was a fire-damaged house located at 713 Delaware St. The house was recently demolished and cleared by Miko.

Probe shows Lance violated bank loan agreement clause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance pledged stock dividends as part of the collateral for a $2,625,000 loan from a New York bank, then broke the agreement by putting up the same stock dividends as collateral for a loan from another bank.

A spokesman for Lance, now director of the Office of Management and Budget, acknowledged that Lance violated the terms of a clause in the loan agreement he signed June 30, 1975, with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. But the spokesman repeatedly emphasized that the bank was not concerned enough to call in the loan.

The transactions are disclosed in bank records of Lance's personal loans, made public by federal banking investigators. Government officials interviewed Thursday said they saw no violation of federal law.

But Robert A. Baer Jr., special assistant to the U.S. comptroller of the currency, said, "Lance may have violated a contract he had with Manufacturers Hanover." And an official with a legal background at the Federal Reserve, which regulates the banks involved, called Lance's action an apparent breach of contract.

"It's very clear that both banks expected the stock," a House investigator said. "Bert Lance clearly gave the impression to both banks that they would get the shares."

Lance's spokesman, Robert W. Dietsch, was asked: You don't dispute that up until the end of the documentary record of the loan, Manufacturers thought they were going to get the stock dividends, they didn't get them and the language that Lance signed indicated that he would in fact send them any such dividends?

"That's all true," Dietsch replied. "It's all there and it's all in the written record. It's also true that the loan was not called. It's also, I think, true that there were additional discussions about what was adequate collateral on the terms of the loan."

"And I think, too, that the written documents have to be taken in the context of all the circumstances that took place between the time the loan was put on and the time the loan was paid off."

Asked if the written document ever was revised, Dietsch replied, "Obviously not. At least not what we have in this file. I have no reason to believe there is anything else in writing. I don't know."

Dietsch was asked: You're not denying that the loan agreement language was in fact broken? Your point is that the bank wasn't enough concerned about that to call the loan?

He replied, "That's correct. The language in the note form is there."

Three Manufacturers documents, two of them letters to Lance, show that

Sandusky man wins $85,000 as stand-in for his mother

CLEVELAND (AP) — "It's hers. None of it's mine," Lyle Kearsley of Sandusky said after he won $85,000 standing in for his mother in the Ohio Lottery television game Thursday.

Kearsley said his mother, a retired widow, will use the money to "fight inflation."

He refused to reveal the age of his mother, Mrs. Amelia Kearsley of Sandusky, or his own.

A sheet metal worker, Kearsley said he felt "a little shaky" after the big win, adding that he sometimes buys lottery tickets himself but had won only small amounts.

Other winners were: Mike Troy, Cleveland, $8,300; Helen Schneider, Dayton, $9,000; Robert Niday, Springfield, $7,400; John Pillo Jr., Chester, W.Va., $7,400; and Helen Rousis, Lorain, $7,100. Mrs. Rousis was the big winner last week when she also won $85,000.

Finalists selected to participate in the Sept. 8 "$1,000 a week for life" drawing are: Charles Pritchard, Plymouth; Willie Gotel, Cleveland; Charles Winkel, Massillon; Paul Black, Oakwood Village; Jean Thomas, Fairfield; Jim Kimura, Berkey; Gerald Reid, Chesterland; Richard Scott, Struthers; Gary Page, Akron; and Bob Colzin of Cleveland.

Numbers drawn in Thursday's Pot O' Gold Game were 428, 536, and 24231. The Lucky Buck numbers were 749 and 70102.

series this year in grades kindergarten through third," Nestor said. "The new program is the Ginn 720 Reading Series, featuring a 'leveled' structure which enables each child to progress at an individual rate. A new grade card is being designed to inform parents of their child's progress in reading," he said.

The implementation of the new reading program will be closely monitored by the elementary coordinator and the curriculum director to judge its effectiveness and provide the base for the study of the reading and English programs at higher grades in the school system, according to Nestor.

In addition to the breakfast program at the two county elementary schools, three other major changes will be evident in the Miami Trace School District this year.

The district, according to Foster, has added three new teachers to staff an elementary physical education program and a new junior high school art program. Physical education has been extended into the elementary grades this year and will be taught by two teachers.

In addition to the three teachers needed to staff the elementary physical education and junior high art programs, there will be 23 more new instructors in the Miami Trace School District this fall.

Foster said three are federally-funded Title I teachers and one is a speech and hearing therapist.

Only one key position will change and that's at Jasper Elementary School in Milledgeville where Mrs. Norma Armstrong will be the new head teacher. The county school district will also have a new attendance officer in Mrs. Ann Wilson who replaces Elmer Haymaker who resigned after several years in the post.

Other new teachers in the Miami Trace district and their assignments are Frank Breedlove, high school; Miss Robin Briggs, New Holland; Mrs. Nancy Cooper, Wilson; Mrs. Linda Cramer, Chaffin, Staunton, Jasper and Madison Mills; Mrs. Clara Mae Domby, Bloomingburg; Miss Debra Eidens, Jeffersonville; Miss Rebecca Eidens, Wilson; Terry Enoch, Bloomingburg; Mrs. Charlotte Rose Esselstein, Bloomingburg; Wylie F. Evans, high school band director; Mrs. Elizabeth Foster, art; Mrs. Joyce Tudor, Madison Mills; Mrs. Shirley A. Pierce, New Holland; Ron Hall, Bloomingburg; Mrs. Debbie Weade, Bloomingburg; Gary Kellough, Wayne; Mrs. Billie Ann Landman, Wayne; Mrs. Shirley Lux, Wayne; Mrs. Michele Manifold Beery, Staunton; Mrs. Janice Lemaster, speech; Miss Nancy Rouhier, Bloomingburg Title I; Dennis Stevenson, New Holland; Miss Julie Shoemaker, Chaffin; Jeffrey Spears, high school, and Miss Patricia Anne Trumbull, Olive-Wilson Title I.

Principal assignments are James L. Oughterson, Bloomingburg; Mrs. Nancy Harper, Chaffin; Michael Campbell, Eber; Gordon McCarty, Jeffersonville; Mrs. Mary Spengler, Madison Mills; David Krupla, Olive; Miss Jerri Bomgardner, Staunton; Roger Zimmerman, Wayne; Glenn Hutchison, Wilson; Ronald Grotten-dick, New Holland; Curtis E. Fleisher, high school, and Mrs. Armstrong, Jasper.

Teacher turnover in the Washington C.H. system was heavier over the summer than in the last five years, according to Nestor. The superintendent attributed most of the turnover "mainly to people moving away and husbands getting new jobs requiring them to transfer."

The turnover in the city district was heaviest at Washington Senior High School where eight new teachers will join the staff. Only six new staff members will join the elementary school faculty.

Gaylord Myers, formerly an administrator in the Wilmington School District, will serve as the new curriculum director in the city system this year. The board created the post recently.

Two other key assignments have changed since last year. Thomas Rankin, formerly assistant principal at Washington Senior High School, is the district's new elementary coordinator, replacing Lewis Parrett who retired. Jon Creamer will assume the assistant principal's post at the high school filling the vacancy created when Rankin accepted his new job.

New teachers in the city system and their assignments are Miss Patricia Hardy and Mrs. Beth Wilson, at Rose Avenue; Mrs. Patricia Ondrus, at Cherry Hill; Miss Mary Ann Binzel, Mrs. Caryll Rhoad and Miss Elizabeth Sauer, at Eastside; William Harris, Miss Roberta Huffman, Mrs. Cinda Stinson and Miss Susan Washburn, at Middle School; John Aber, Norris Curry, Mrs. Mary Fish, Steve Johnston, Joyce Ludban, Karen Mount, Mrs. Donna Myers and Gaylord Myers, at the high school.

City principal assignments are Maurice Pfeifer, at the high school; Ben Roby, at the Middle School; Terry Feick, at Belle-Aire; Charles Melton, at Rose Avenue; Sam Forsythe, at Cherry Hill, and Rodger Kieck, at Eastside.

Both Foster and Nestor said the replacement teachers were of "very high quality."

In addition to new teachers, other changes which will be evident in the Miami Trace School District will be a new science series for students, in grades 5-8, and some extensive repairs to district buildings over the summer months.

A "major headache" in the Miami Trace district each year is the bus transportation schedule with a fleet of more than 30 buses concerning a myriad of county and township roads.

Assistant Superintendent Steve Yambor said all elementary and secondary students in special education classes will ride the high school route to the high school and be shuttled to their respective schools from there. These students will also return home on the high school route, he said.

Parents of special education students in the county system will be notified by mail as to the school their child is assigned.

Seventh and eighth grade students in Culpepper Trace Court and seventh and eighth grade students residing in the Leslie Trace Court, North Shore and Rosemont areas will be picked up in their respective areas at 7:50 a.m. by bus No. 36 and taken directly to Bloomingburg. This group will be dismissed at 3:05 p.m. and taken directly home.

Interestingly, both Foster and Nestor said Fayette County has apparently experienced "baby boom" in recent years as both districts will have a higher enrollments in the primary grades.

The Washington C.H. School District is expecting about 1,100 students to be enrolled in grades 1-5 and kindergarten this year. This represents a slight increase in size over the previous year. Currently the district has 600 more children in both kindergarten and first grade than it does in grades 4 and 5.

Foster also noted the county system is experiencing a similar climb in elementary enrollment figures.

In a related matter, Foster said the county district is experiencing difficulty in keeping class sizes comparable in the 11 elementary buildings. He said some minor changes to balance class loads may be implemented after school starts and officials are given an opportunity to evaluate the situation.

While students in the two districts are preparing to return to classes Tuesday, the school bell will ring Monday for teachers. In-service meetings are planned in both districts in order that the teachers and administrators may complete plans for the 1977-1978 school year.

Vance returning from China trip

TOKYO (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance flew from Peking to Tokyo today to brief Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda on his visit with China's new leaders and relay President Carter's concern over a nuclear plant Japan is planning.

Vance and Fukuda first met in the presence of their aides, and then huddled alone for 40 minutes, Japanese spokesmen said. Details of the talks were not disclosed, but Japanese sources said they included discussion of Japan's plans to build a nuclear reprocessing plant 60 miles northeast of Tokyo.

Vance handed Fukuda a message from Carter, his aides said. Carter's special nuclear nonproliferation negotiator, Gerard C. Smith, was expected to arrive here Saturday for further talks on the reprocessing plant.

Japanese sources said Fukuda also raised the question of U.S.-Japan trade. The U.S. government is known to be critical of Japan's $5 billion trade surplus.

Vance ended his four-day visit to Peking "better informed" about the policies of the new Chinese regime, he said, but he made no claims that any progress had been made toward establishing diplomatic relations between the United States and China.

Following his 80-minute meeting Thursday with Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, it was clear Mao Tse-tung's successor did not soften the demand that the United States cut its diplomatic and military ties with the Nationalist regime on Taiwan.

"The Chinese position on a number of matters relating to Taiwan has been expressed publicly," Vance told reporters. "I think it would be best if I left it there."

Nor would Vance discuss the substance of his talks with Hua, Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and Foreign Minister Huang Hua. He said they were "very useful," and "I go away from here better informed, there is no question about that."

In Washington, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said President Carter was "impressed" by Vance's reports of the Chinese government's "constructive attitude."

The secretary of state said there would be further discussions with the Chinese on normalizing relations "in the months ahead." This could mean more meetings with Huang Hua when he attends the U.N. General Assembly in New York next month.

While he came to Tokyo, Vance sent his assistant secretary for Far Eastern affairs, Richard Holbrooke, to South Korea and Taiwan to brief the governments there on his Peking visit.

Along with the talks about China, Japanese officials were prepared to argue with Vance about the Carter administration's efforts to curb foreign production of plutonium because it can be used in nuclear weapons.

So far, American pressure has helped to delay operation of a $200-million nuclear fuel reprocessing plant in Tokai, 60 miles northeast of Tokyo, because plutonium would be a byproduct. But Japanese officials are determined to go ahead with the project because otherwise the nuclear power industry they are developing to take the place of energy from imported oil would be entirely dependent on enriched uranium from abroad.

Judge's words may aid recall attempts

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Feminists say release of a transcript from a juvenile rape hearing will help their recall campaign against a judge whose remarks they branded as outrageous sexism.

But Dane County Judge Archie Simonson said he was "overjoyed and very happy" Thursday with the transcript and said he would use the text in speeches during his campaign for next month's recall election.

Simonson had said the full context of his remarks from the bench — including comments on sexual permissiveness in Madison — would exonerate him from a storm of criticism.

News accounts after the hearing reported Simonson had implied it was "normal" for a 15-year-old boy to assault a 16-year-old girl in reaction to scanty women's clothing and permissive attitudes.

Opponents managed to obtain 35,000 signatures, forcing a recall election Sept. 7 in which Simonson and five challengers will seek his judicial post.

The 52-year-old Simonson, elected to the bench in 1972 after practicing law in Madison for 20 years, had been scheduled to go up for re-election in April 1978.

"How could Judge Simonson have thought release of transcript would have a chilling effect on his recall when it merely elaborates the sexism already reported?" Anne Gaylor, a leader in the recall petition drive and a member of the National Organization for Women (NOW), asked Thursday.

The transcript was released Thursday by Circuit Judge William Sachtlein over the objections of attorneys for the teenagers involved.

"This community is well known to be sexually permissive," Simonson said in the transcript. "Look at the newspapers, look at the sex clubs, the advertisements of sex, the availability of it through your escort services, the prostitutes, they are being picked up daily."

"Go down State Street and the university area. I used to see girls clothed like that and I had to pay a lot of money to go into the south side of Chicago to view what I see down on State Street today."

"Even in the open court we have people appearing — women appearing without bras and with the nipples fully exposed and they think it is smart and they sit here on the witness stand with their dresses up over the cheeks of their butts and we have this type of thing in the schools," Simonson said in the transcript.

The girl involved in the school assault case had been wearing blue jeans, sneakers and a blouse over a turtle-neck sweater.

"So is that the attitude of the community?" Simonson continued in the transcript. "... Are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that persons severely because they react to it normally?"

It was the idea that assault might be a normal reaction to permissiveness that created the uproar.

Simonson followed recommendations of social workers and sentenced the youth, who pleaded no contest to delinquency for second degree sexual assault, to one year in his parents' custody under court supervision.

Postal Service takes another look at Saturday mail service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which seemed ready to end Saturday mail deliveries a few months ago, is taking another look at whether the public would accept the cutback.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said Thursday that before any decision is made to reduce service, "We intend to do a comprehensive study of what the public wishes."

The Postal Service still is considering the cutback, but will delay its decision until a new public opinion survey is completed, Bailar said.

Last spring, the Commission on Postal Service recommended that Saturday service be eliminated, saving the financially troubled Postal Service an estimated $400 million a year.

Bailar praised the study group at the time and said the service was considering the move.

Then, in late June, the agency put the proposal on its agenda for a July meeting of the Postal Service's governing board. But when the meeting was held, the item was passed over.

Bailar's speech to a convention of the National League of Postmasters in San Juan, Puerto Rico, was the first public explanation of the delay.

A survey conducted by the A.G. Nielsen polling organization for the study commission found 79 per cent of the public would be willing to forego the sixth delivery day if it would help hold down postal rates.

But now the Postal Service is having second thoughts about that study.

"The results of subsequent surveys ... have differed enough with the Nielsen figures to make us want to more thoroughly analyze the public's acceptance of this move," Bailar said Thursday.

A spokesman, explaining the "subsequent surveys," said results from a new poll commissioned by the Postal Service are confusing.

That survey found 81 per cent of the public "couldn't think of any reason they would have to receive mail on Saturday," the spokesman said.

"This would seem to confirm the Nielsen results," he said.

But, in answering a second survey question, only 45 per cent said they approved of eliminating Saturday deliveries, he added.

Now, he said, "We are trying to find the discrepancy."

Before deliveries could be reduced, the Postal Service would have to submit its plan to the independent Postal Rate Commission, which would then hold public hearings on the issue.

REALTOR

SELL HOME YOURSELF?

I'm sure you've heard it said: "Why should I sell my home through a REALTOR? I can sell it myself and save a lot of money." Right?.....wrong!

This kind of thinking usually turns out to be financially unwise. The prospects will usually start by mentally deducting the commission and then start negotiating from there. On the the average, a homeowner saves NO money when he sells his own home. In fact, the opposite is true. Studies over a ten year period show that the net proceeds from owner-sold property are LESS than the REALTOR sold piece of real estate, even after the payment of commission.

As a private seller you're at a great disadvantage in the intricate areas of financing, negotiating and protecting yourself from all sorts of do-it-yourself pitfalls. You've got a lot invested in your home. It makes sense to list it with a REALTOR. He'll sell it for you - without hitches - for the best price and in the shortest possible time.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at HOWARD MILLER, REALTOR, 222 N. Oakland Ave., Washington Court House. Phone: 335-5200. We're here to help!

Elephant gives man rough time

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A man who attempted to strike up a conversation with a elephant at the Ohio State Fair received an unexpected response.

State Highway Patrol Trooper Paul D. McClellan said Steven W. Callahan, 23, ventured into a stable area Wednesday for elephants performing in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus featured this week at the fair.

"He walked up and started horsing around with this elephant," McClellan said.

"He patted the elephant on the nose and asked the elephant how he was doing tonight."

The elephant wrapped his trunk around Callahan, rearing up, shaking him and then throwing him to the ground.

Callahan was treated for a fractured right arm.

The disgruntled pachyderm was chained and secured, the officer said.

The first British woman MP was Lady Astor, elected to Parliament in 1919. She remained an MP until 1945. She was American-born Nancy Witcher Langhorne from Virginia who moved to England after her marriage.

LOS ANGELES AP — For the last 15 seasons, Merlin Olsen has spent Sundays in the fall working for the Los Angeles Rams, jumping on folks he felt needed jumping on. Like quarterbacks.

It's safe to say the jumpers are relieved this 6-foot-5, 225-pound All-Pro defensive tackle has retired and starts a new career this fall as an employee of NBC, both as a sportscaster and as an actor.

The acting is being done in the "Little House on the Prairie." He'll start appearing in it on Sept. 12 — three days before his 37th birthday — as regular, a farmer-woodsman named Jonathan Garvey.

It's his first series, but not his acting debut. That came, he says, in 1969 when he and another actor, Roman Gabriel, now with the Philadelphia Eagles, were in a John Wayne flick, "The Undefeated."

Merlin played a good guy, a blacksmith.

"I did have a fight scene in it, but I was — provoked," he said with a low chuckle that sounded like reveille in Mount Vesuvius.

It led to other off-season acting roles, he added, but usually as a heavy: "They figured anybody as big as I was had to be a heavy."

A matter-of-fact man with considerable smarts, Olsen, owner of a Phi Beta Kappa key and a master's degree in economics from Utah State, says he never formally studied acting.

But when he signed to be the biggest man in "Little House," he commenced intensive work with Charles Conrad, a veteran acting coach here.

Olsen, who started his sports-casting career during off-seasons at TV station KTLA here and his business career with a Porsche dealership in suburban Encino, was asked why he's taking a serious shot at emoting.

"Well," the ex-Ram rumbled, "it really puts me on somewhat of the same performance cycle I've been on during all my football career."

"And that is intensive preparation, then performance, and then a chance to get it all back together again and start all over again."

"I felt if I could find something similar in its challenge to professional sports — which in its own way is part of the entertainment world—I was going to make the adjustment to civilian life more easily."

"And so far, it's working."

Olsen, who lives in San Marino, near Pasadena, with his wife and their three kids, was asked if he feels Ram withdrawal pangs, if it feels odd not to be cranking up to smite football opponents again this fall.

"No, I haven't had any real problem with the adjustment," he said, a disappointing answer for fans expecting his eyes to mist with regret at not trying just one more season.

School closing decision slated

MONROEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Monroeville Local School District officials were to learn this morning if school doors will close after classes today or on Oct. 6.

District Supt. Donald Halsey, who calls either alternative unpleasant, met late Thursday with State Supt. of Public Instruction Franklin Walter. It is up to Walter to decide if Halsey has proved his district has the money to stay open beyond today.

The school fund crisis in this town of 1,500 in northern Ohio came to a head on Aug. 16 when voters turned down a 9-mill school operating levy by 52 votes. Residents here have not, Halsey said, passed an operating levy increase since 1968.

On Wednesday, State Auditor Thomas Ferguson certified a Friday closing date. He said the district would amass $120,122 in debts by the end of the calendar year. That would mean the district would have to close early in October. But he added that required unemployment compensation payments to teachers out of work would amount to an additional $100,820, forcing the closing today.

Some 975 students and 69 school teachers, employes and administrators will be effected by the closing.

"I'm sure we can make it to October," Halsey said just before leaving for the meeting with Walter. "We've got some funds we can show him that should convince him to let us stay open."

Walter said he would examine that evidence and certify a closing date today.

Unofficial surveys of school districts facing closings show Monroeville with the most serious problems. Toledo schools, however, will be closed from Oct. 13 to Jan. 3 because of a $6.7 million deficit.

Halsey said voters here will be asked to pass a special $240,000-a-year levy with a five-year life at the upcoming November general election.

If the levy fails then the district would have to remain closed until the first of the year when new tax money becomes available.

Self-help in the slums

A New York City group called the People's Development Corporation is proving that the energy and spirit of the American pioneers can be brought to bear on life in urban slums. The PDC's activities bring us a heartening saga of what can be done, even in conditions of great adversity, when men and women pool their hope and determination to achieve a common purpose.

This is a group of mostly young, low-income blacks and Hispanics, ranging from high school dropouts to college graduates but united by their vision of a better life. They are engaged in creating homes from the wreckage of urban neglect. Already they have transformed an entire six-story apartment building, once blighted with decay and fifth, into respectable dwelling places.

The down payment for living in one of those apartments was 10 hours of "sweat time" each week until the project was completed. Most tenants put in much more work than was required, and an addition spent long hours fixing up their own apartments.

Many obstacles were overcome. After an initial cleanup job, the PDC obtained loans from the Housing Development Authority, the Consumer-Farmer Foundation, and the state Criminal Justice Coordinating Council. This money provided building materials.

It was not enough, though, to provide skilled labor. So the PDC hired a few skilled craftsmen to teach its members how to do the work. They learned quickly because the motivation was high.

Even so, fashioning a good home in the slums of New York requires more than money and craftsmanship. It also demands a spirit of community self-pride that can rise above the atmosphere of defeat which permeates the inner city. The PDC has shown that spirit in abundance.

These 40 men and women have rejected the pervasive hopelessness about them. Nor is their work ended; they have financing to rejuvenate five more buildings, so that in time many others will benefit by their restorative concept. We hope their idea will spread, not only in New York but in other urban slums as well. And we salute them as true pioneers in a frontier that is formidable and dangerous.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

A receiver of 'liberated' loot

I regret this late entrance to the great looking debate, but I have been off to the law library checking the statute of limitations. Reassured, I can not divulge the dreadful truth: John P.

Roche, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., D. Litt., Phi Beta Kappa, is an undicted looter, emeritus. As you can imagine, the debate over events during the New York blackout has unsettled me.

Reading the columns of my conservative brethren, who doubtless never swiped a nickel from Mom's purse, I shuddered: clearly I was a desecrator of the Judeo-Christian tradition and the values of our Republic; a wicked person who had cunningly evaded the electric chair.

Then I read the permissive high theorists. They made me feel better. Yes, I grew up in a strange family relationship, though Dad never deserted. In fact, that was part of the problem. He was unemployed and home too damn much. Yes, we were poor and, until the war solved the problem, juvenile unemployment approximated 100 per cent.

In short, I learned I wasn't guilty - everybody was. This absolution lifted the burden from my soul momentarily, but then the inner voice of cold conscience said, "Johnny, that's a crock. You loved that fur-lined flight-jacket even though you knew it had been 'liberated' from an Air Force warehouse."

It all began innocently enough. In 1945 I was sitting in the NCO club at an Air Transport Command base playing poker, when someone rushed in to announce that one of the warehouses was on fire. By private arrangement with the Motor Pool sergeant, I had my own jeep parked outside. Not because I was lazy but rather because my colonel, a grand guy, would get rockets in the middle of the night from Biak, Guam and our other charming resorts demanding the instant shipment of a chaplain, two quartermaster officers, and five navigators. He would call me, say "ship those ...s out," confident they would be on the morning plane and eventually he would get his star. (He did.)

But I digress. My friends of the non-commissioned baronage agreed we should finish the hand and then go down to the depot and take a look at the fire. It was a beauty: the flames had begun in a section where flares, rounds for Very pistols, and similar pyrotechnics were stored, and the place looked like an old-fashioned July 4th. However, the building was roughly the size of a football field, and while the firemen were busy at one end, there was a good deal of unusual activity at the other.

A solid line of men was entering one door and emerging from another encumbered with all sorts of stuff. We got out of the jeep to take a closer look and it was soon clear that a salvage mission was underway. The troops in an orderly fashion were saving everything they could from the flames. There was little disorder: the Military Police saw to that, promptly breaking up fights over who was going to rescue, say, five pair of flight boots.

Indeed, there was a touching quality about the scene. Here were men, some of whom had served overseas for two years, voluntarily, on their own time, going to the aid of their country. And working prodigiously: I recall one Pfc carrying no less than 10 cartons of air crew dark glasses.

It would be pointless to overwork the irony. All this happens to be true with one footnote. The troops were not engaged in salvage "pro bono publico," but were "liberating" the goods from the impending flames. They were not taking them to another warehouse, but back to the barracks for sale, trade or friendly distribution. Which brings me to my role as an accessory after the fact.

My colleagues and I held far too lofty positions to join the line. A M1Sgt. who ran Operations (for another invisible colonel) was not going to get in there with the peasants. The T1 Sgt who ran Base Intelligence as chaplone for a genial major would hardly engage in unskilled labor. So, after watching a while, we returned for some beer and seven card high-low, confident there would be no disorder.

However, a day or two later, a Pvt. I knew dropped in. He had lived in my barracks and some months before, when his father died, I had called my friend at Operations and got the Pvt. a top-priority Air Force hitch-hike chit to get home fast. He came to express his gratitude - and presented me with a real, authentic, leather, fur-lined flight-jacket, size 42.

Cincinnati Zoo to dedicate memorial to passenger pigeon

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Zoo next week will dedicate a memorial to Martha, a bird conservationists hope will become a perpetual reminder of man's greed and thoughtlessness.

Martha was the name of the last known passenger pigeon, which died at the Cincinnati Zoo on Sept. 1, 1914.

The Old Bird House where she died is being dedicated next Thursday as a memorial to the passenger pigeon and to all extinct species.

Information on the Carolina Parakeet, the last of which died at the Cincinnati Zoo in 1918, will also be on display at the memorial.

In 1813, artist-naturalist John James Audubon watched a flock of passenger pigeons pass overhead as he traveled from Henderson, Ky., on the banks of the Ohio, to Louisville.

He wrote that the stream of birds was so dense it darkened the sun. He said the flock was about one mile wide and took three hours to pass.

When Martha was hatched in 1885, millions of passenger pigeons filled the skies over the United States. By the time the bird was 10 years old, in 1895, the species had dwindled to 250,000 and yet it continued to be shot by the hundreds.

"The passenger pigeon had two great failings. It was beautiful and edible," noted John Ruthven, a noted wildlife artist whose original drawing of the species has helped to raise money to restore the zoo site.

Ruthven told of one occasion at the turn of the century at Coney Island in New York where 20,000 pigeons were shot for sport in 10 days.

"This pigeon is testimony to man's greed," Ruthven said.

Martha came to the Cincinnati Zoo in 1902. The zoo had been keeping the species since 1878, when its collection had been reduced to 11 birds.

The last authenticated sighting of a wild passenger pigeon occurred in 1900. The pigeon was shot by a little boy.

Now only three birds remained at the Cincinnati Zoo. One of two males died in April 1909, leaving only the one pair of passenger pigeons. The zoo was offered great sums of money to part with the pair, but it refused.

Martha and her mate built a nest, but all eggs proved infertile. When the male died on July 10, 1910, all hopes of preserving the species went with him.

Martha lived on for four more years. Two oldtimers recalled that a sign hung outside her cage offering a $10,000 reward to anyone who could find a mate for Martha.

"People used to bring in mourning doves which resemble passenger pigeons, but are smaller," said one longtime zoo visitor.

On Sept. 1, 1914, Martha was found on the ground, dead. An examination revealed she had died of old age at 29.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: AMERICA IS NOT MERELY A NATION BUT A NATION OF NATIONS.—LYNDON BAINES JOHNSON

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Fast service and smile
maketh the sales clerk

DEAR ABBY: I work at a store with a girl I'll call "Sue". She's a nice girl and very efficient, but she never smiles. When she says, "Thank you," she sounds like a recording. No sincerity, no cheerfulness, just a long face and about as much personality as a robot.

I always smile when I wait on customers. I think that's the way to get them to come back. Sue says the customers don't care whether you smile or not. They come to buy, she says, and if they're satisfied, they'll come back, regardless.

What's your opinion?

BETTENDORF, IOWA
DEAR BETT: What customers want more than anything else are efficiency and courtesy — not smiles. The salesperson who is too busy chatting with another salesperson to notice when a customer is waiting, or the clerk who can't make change or write up a sales slip efficiently will never compensate with a smile.

But the salesperson who is courteous, efficient, ready to serve and smiles, too — all her price is above rubies, her paycheck shall runneth over, and her boss will rise up and call her "buyer".

DEAR ABBY: I'm a guy, age 18. Last night I dated a 17-year-old girl because I liked her looks and wanted to get to know her better.

Like most guys, I tried to see how far I could get with her. After one wrong move, she hauled off and slapped my face really hard.

Abby, I never knew a slap could feel that good. I wanted to thank her for slapping me!

I wish you'd advise more girls to use that technique. I sure have a lot of respect for that girl now. Just because a guy puts up a little fight doesn't mean he wants to win.

ST. JOE SHMO
DEAR SHMO: Thanks for your honesty. Too many girls think if they don't let a guy go as far as he wants, they'll never see him again.

DEAR ABBY: I recently saw a documentary on television that made me sick. I couldn't get it out of my mind for days.

It was about 13- and 14-year-old girls — just kids themselves — who are expecting babies! They were being interviewed, and one 14-year-old said she got pregnant because she wanted someone to love!

What happens when she discovers that this bundle of love needs more than just the love she can give it?

Who takes care of it?

SICK IN CLEVELAND
DEAR SICK: Either the girl's parents or the taxpayers. One of the reasons I am such a true believer in Planned Parenthood is their stand on sex education, and their motto: "Every child a wanted child."

Ohio woman, son enjoying 1,200-mile bicycle trek despite aches, pains

NEWBURY, Ohio (AP) — Agatha Walter and her son Eddie, 11, say they are finding pedaling the 1,200 miles from Willimantic, Conn., to Roanoke, Ind., "just super."

But after visiting with relatives in Roanoke when they complete the journey later this month, they say they will be looking forward to their homeward trip—by car.

Once is enough, though the trip so far has been "totally perfect," says Ms. Walter, as she prefers to be known. They stopped at the John Talsma residence here recently for a weekend rest on the recommendation of Mrs. Talsma's sister in Connecticut.

The 1,200-mile journey began July 13. The stiff and aching muscles began the next day.

They made only about 20 miles a day as they worked their way through the Catskill Mountains, often walking up the steeper grades; but their average jumped to nearly 50 miles daily when they hit the rolling Pennsylvania and Ohio terrain.

Early on, Ms. Walker said, they learned the importance of wearing helmets. A friend at whose home they stopped in the initial two days had decided to pedal along for a way when they left. She fell and was injured seriously. "We went out and bought our helmets the very next day," Ms. Walter said.

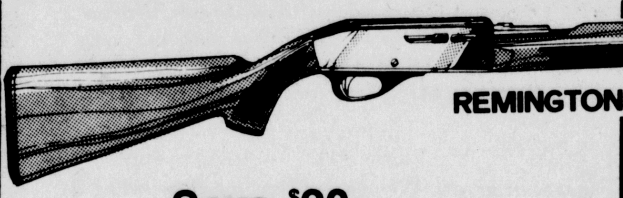

They undertook the journey simply because "it just seemed like a good way for a mother and son to spend a summer together," Ms. Walter said. "It's been a super vacation and extremely educational, too."

Marting guest speaker at Farm Bureau meet

Emerson Marting, a well-known Fayette County farmer and auctioneer, will be the featured speaker at the 58th annual meeting of the Fayette County Farm Bureau at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 6 in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Tickets for the dinner meeting are priced at $3.50 per person. The reservation deadline is Friday, Sept. 2. The tickets may be obtained at the Farm Bureau office, 319 S. Fayette St., or from any Farm Bureau board member.

Marting owns and operates 1,650 acres of farm land in Fayette and Clinton counties, specializing in registered Hereford cattle. He is an auctioneer of national reputation, having conducted over 4,000 sales in 26 states and Canada.

The homespun humorist is a storyteller deluxe on matters both serious and comical and he most enjoys relating tales concerning his "hillbilly" friends and relatives, especially his wife, mother-in-law, and children. He possesses a rapid fire delivery reminiscent of another popular Ohioan, Bob Hope, and the humor of the late Will Rogers. He has been the featured speaker at meetings of service clubs, farmers and agricultural groups throughout the nation.

"Co-chairmen of the event feel very fortunate to have Emerson Marting as the miss," said Mrs. Dwight Duff, 5809 Washington-Waterloo Road, chairman of the Farm Bureau's information committee.

It should be noted that the meeting is planned in early September this year with the hope that the fall harvest will not be in full swing, in order that many area farmers can be in attendance without neglecting their crops.

Officials check pony's condition

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Veterinarians are laboring to repair the deformed hooves and legs of a Shetland pony confined for four years in a nailed shut stall piled high with manure.

"I've seen a lot, but that still shocked me," said Peter Saunders, an investigator for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA), who examined the pony shortly after he was found two weeks ago in the town of Plaistow, near the Massachusetts border.

"The pony's hooves are enormous, about a foot and a half long and curved back until they almost touch his knees," Saunders said.

The deformity is called laminitis, and some veterinarians said they had never seen such a severe and painful case. The pony's legs were also damaged because of the distortion of the hooves.

In addition, the pony had "hay belly," a distension caused by a diet of all hay and no grain.

"That pony must have one hell of a will to live," said Saunders.

King, a 10-year-old gold-colored pony with a light mane, was found in a garage after an SPCA investigator received a tip that some type of animal was being kept in the building.

"I couldn't believe what I saw," said Plaistow Animal Control Officer Don Sargent. "I looked into a small window and saw a pony standing on top of a pile of manure as high as the window."

"I can't believe that anything could live in that filth. We pried the boards off the stall so we could get the pony out and the maggots and flies just swarmed out."

The pony was owned by a woman named Barbara Reed, but police and the SPCA are refusing to say where the woman lives or why she locked up the animal because of distress over the incident in the town of about 5,000 persons.

They fear that publicity might prompt some "overzealous animal lover to take some rash action against the man." The SPCA now owns the pony.

Mrs. Reed has been charged with cruelty to animals. In New Hampshire the charge is a misdemeanor which could result in a sentence of one year in jail, a $500 fine or both.

"We only go to court when we know we'll win ... It was blatant cruelty," Saunders said.

Health centers rap abortion plan

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National Association of Community Health Centers has passed a resolution opposing the cutoff of federal funds for elective abortions and criticizing what it called "the subtle effort of state and federal bureaucracies to promote sterilization" as an alternative to abortion.

The resolution, which was approved Thursday during the final day of the organization's national convention, demands that abortion be included service for Medicaid reimbursements.

"The association demands that the Congress and the President reaffirm their support of poor and minority women by supporting the efforts of those women to secure equal treatment under the law as it concerns abortion," the resolution said.

The association stated that it "deplores the subtle effort of the state and federal bureaucracies to promote sterilization policies as an alternative to abortion and urges the recognition of the rights of poor and minority women to a freedom of choice."

Whatever efforts "it deems necessary" will be made to make sure that each state will not restrict the use of federal funds for abortion, according to association president Janice Robinson.

Ms. Robinson, as she prefers to be called, said the resolution would be forwarded to President Carter and to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"We would hope that due consideration would be given to the position that was taken by an organization that represents about three million people," Ms. Robinson said. "What we are concerned about is discrimination against poor women who will be left without choice if federal funds are not allowed to be used for abortions."

The debate centered on the discrimination issue against the poor rather than on the moral issues of abortion, Ms. Robinson added.

The group also approved a resolution endorsing federal initiatives aimed at reducing the incidences of preventable childhood diseases.

"That initiative would immunize the approximately 20 million children who are incompletely immunized against preventable childhood diseases and would establish a continuing system by which America's children are assured complete immunization in the future," Ms. Robinson said.

The association's members will be handing out literature to parents and families to make sure that all children are immunized, the association president said.

Over 1,000 community health administrators, physicians, nurses, pharmacists, mid-level practitioners and consumers attended the convention.

Senate requests magician's help

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The New Hampshire Senate, trying to find a way to keep the money-short state government operating after Oct. 20 without enacting new taxes, has had to seek professional help.

Interrupting a debate on the need for mental health centers and programs for the retarded, the senators on Thursday watched a magician saw his wife in half in the Senate chamber.

The magician, a Laconia man known as "Nascimento," said he wanted "to show them how to cut the budget without drawing blood."

New Hampshire, the only state without a general sales or income tax, is operating on a temporary budget until Oct. 20.

Free lunches set for eligible pupils

Area students can again take advantage of free and reduced-price lunches this coming school year.

The lunch programs will be offered by both the Miami Trace and the Washington C.H. school districts as well as the Joint Vocational School District.

Eligible students can obtain free or reduced-price meals under the National School Lunch Program. There is also a special milk program allowing eligible children to receive an extra one-half pint of milk.

Eligibility for the programs is determined by a federal family size-income scale.

Children from families whose income is at or below the federal scale are eligible.

In addition families not meeting the family size-income levels, but having other unusual expenses such as high medical bills, shelter costs, disaster losses, and special education expenses are urged to apply for the benefit.

The school districts are sending application forms for the program to all parents. Additional copies can be obtained at the principal's office of each school.

All information provided by parents on the applications is confidential and will only be used for determining eligibility of students.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, application forms contain a statement certifying that all information furnished is true and correct.

Applications are being made in connection with the receipt of federal funds and school officials may need to verify information appearing on the applications.

Deliberate misrepresentation may subject the applicant to prosecution.

Under the provisions of the federally funded programs, a school official will review applications and determine eligibility.

If a parent is not satisfied with the official's ruling, an informal or formal appeal may be made. If a formal appeal is lodged, a hearing on the matter would be required under the program guidelines.

If a family member loses his job or if family size changes, the parent should contact the school and file a new application.

Also, in certain cases, foster children are eligible for the free lunch benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals or milk, the school should be contacted.

The following family size-income scale determines the eligibility of students. The same scale is used for families wishing to take advantage of available free breakfast programs.

Presently, the free breakfast program is only offered to eligible students in the county's Jasper and Bloomington elementary schools.

The following chart gives the income cutoff lines for family eligibility in the federal program. The family size, which includes parents, children and others, is given first. Then the income cutoff for free lunches and the income cutoff for reduced-price lunches.

Radio equipment reportedly stolen in burglary incident

Over $2,000 in radio equipment and other items were stolen in a burglary at the Mid-Ohio Chemical Co. in Jeffersonville early Thursday morning, according to a Fayette County Sheriff's Department report.

The manager of the plant on McKillip Road, Don Robinette, told investigating sheriff's deputies someone broke out the window of a door to the building and ransacked the desks and cabinets sometime between 3:30 and 7:30 Thursday morning.

Items stolen, according to the sheriff's report, included an FM band radio valued at $2,000; two citizen band radios valued at $69 each; a power pack for converting citizen band radios to FM band, $30; a cash box containing about $8; and a Timex watch valued at $15.

According to a Washington C.H. Police Department report, a windshield was stolen from a 1971 model Honda motorcycle sometime between Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The motorcycle's owner, Roger Larkins, 21, of 907 S. Main St., reportedly told officers the $300 "wind-jammer" was taken while the cycle was parked on his front porch between 11 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday.

Police officers have arrested a 14-year-old Washington C.H. boy on charges of petty theft in connection with a theft of a car radio Wednesday night.

The police report stated Elmer H. Smith, 1794 Ohio 41-N, flagged down an officer on patrol in the area of 618 Rose Ave. around 10:50 p.m. Smith reportedly told the officer a small, $20-AM-FM radio with a citizen band receiver was stolen from his car just a few minutes earlier.

The officer continued patrol in three and spotted three youths, one of whom allegedly had a radio in his possession, which matched the description of the one Smith reported as stolen.

The boy was detained and the radio taken to Smith, which he identified as the one taken from his car. The youth was charged with petty theft and later released to the custody of his parents pending a hearing in the Fayette County Juvenile Court.

In one other police department theft report, Billy D. Odell of Springfield stated sometime last week someone removed an AM band radio, a battery and a headlight ring from his 1973 model Volkswagen while it was parked in Odell's service station parking lot at 1240 Columbus Ave. The vehicle had been wrecked previously and was being stored at the station.

Lima school hearing set

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The Lima public elementary school desegregation hearing will resume in September after a judge determines the importance of a federal investigator's confidential sources.

The hearing was halted July 15 to resolve the dispute whether Patricia Wofford, a Civil Rights Office investigator, had to say where she obtained information about white students allegedly transferring from a predominantly black elementary school to a white school in the 1950s.

Federal attorneys had challenged hearing Judge John Castelli of Indianapolis who ruled Mrs. Wofford must reveal her sources. The appeal went to a federal HEW review board which sent the issue back to the judge on Wednesday.

The reviewing authority in Washington said Wednesday that Mrs. Wofford does not have to reveal sources on cross examination by school attorneys. However, an official with the review board said the ruling does not mean attorneys cannot ultimately have sources revealed.

According to the guidelines set by the board, Castelli first must examine information in executive session. If he determines it is necessary for school attorneys Frank Cory and David Cheney to know the identities, he can order names revealed. The review board said it was up to the judge to "determine if (the names are) important or necessary to the case."

Cory, who requested the hearing be adjourned until the issue was resolved, said Thursday he was displeased with the ruling, but was looking forward to resuming the hearing.

"We're going to keep the heat on to find out," Cory said.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms are expected to move into the western counties of Ohio tonight and into the remainder of the state Saturday.

The National Weather Service said warmer and more humid temperatures will accompany the showers on Saturday.

The large high pressure area that brought cool and dry weather to Ohio the past few days was in New England this morning. Southerly winds flowing around the back side of that high were to bring the warmer and more humid air into the state.

Under partly cloudy skies, the temperature was expected to climb into the 80s today.

Kent State gym fuss may reach high court

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The court battle over the construction of a gymnasium annex at Kent State University may move into the U.S. Supreme Court.

Theodore Meckler, an attorney for the May 4th Coalition which opposes the construction planned near the site of the 1970 Kent State University shootings, says another ban on construction will be sought from the high court or a federal appellate court.

The step will be taken after the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati Wednesday rejected a coalition request to halt construction while the U.S. Interior Department determines whether to name the site a national landmark. Four students were killed and nine wounded by National Guard fire there in 1970.

That ruling won't take effect for 10 days to give coalition attorneys time to file an appeal with the high court.

Meckler said the appeal probably will be filed with Justice Potter

Stewart, who is responsible for receiving cases from this area during the court's summer recess.

Another coalition attorney, William T. Whitaker, said Thursday he would go the Ohio Supreme Court during the 10-day delay and ask that court to order the trustees to reconsider the annex site.

Whitaker said he will argue that the trustees never assumed the proper responsibility for the choice of the annex location.

The trustees were lax in their duty because they allowed former KSU president Glenn A. Olds and other administrators to decide on the site, he said.

By the time the trustees acted on the matter in November 1976, it was not a voluntary choice, Whitaker said. Several hundred thousand dollars had already been spent on the site preparation without approval from the trustees, he added.

Other mishaps reported

Orient driver cited in single-car crash

Fayette County sheriff's deputies cited an Orient man following a single-car accident Thursday night on New Holland-Good Hope Road about a mile north of White Road.

The sheriff's department report stated James K. Cox, 29, of Orient, lost control of his pick-up truck around 9:33 p.m. when he failed to negotiate a right curve in the New Holland-Good Hope Road. The vehicle ran off the left side of the road crashing through seven rods of farm fence. He was cited for failure to drive on the right half of the road.

Cox was not injured and only slight damage was done to the truck. Washington C.H. police officers reported three minor accidents Thursday.

Kenneth E. Blair, 62, of 14 Colonial

Court, struck a parked car as he was backing up to a gasoline pump at the Barnhart Firestone Store, 304 E. Market St. The parked vehicle, which sustained slight damage, belongs to Harold Wilson of Clarksburg. The exact time of the incident was not reported.

Two vehicles collided around 4:30 Thursday afternoon in an alley in the 600 block of S. Fayette Street near Cherry Street, according to another police report. Mildred F. Osborne, 31, of 612 S. Fayette St., was backing from a private drive behind her residence and struck another vehicle northbound in the alley. The car driven by Deborah R. (Knisley) Garringer, 21, of 1426 Mark Road, received minor damage. Neither driver was injured.

In one other accident reported by police officers, 30-year-old Gloria J. Minton, 8027 Allen Road, struck the side of another vehicle as she attempted to turn right onto E. Elm Street from the center lane of S. Fayette Street. The police report stated the other driver, Shirley A. Moats, 31, of 621 Waverly Drive, was also in the process of turning right onto Elm Street from the curb lane of S. Fayette Street around 4:50 p.m. Ms. Minton started to turn the same direction and struck Ms. Moats' car causing only slight damage.

Police officers did not issue a citation. No injuries were reported.

Traffic Court

Washington C.H. Municipal Court Judge John P. Case found a Sabina resident guilty of driving while intoxicated and failure to drive on the right half of the road Thursday.

After being convicted of the two charges, Ronald W. Anders, 40, of Sabina, was fined $350 and costs for driving while intoxicated and had his driver's license suspended for 90 days. Judge Case ordered $95 of the fine be allocated to the Laurel Oaks Treatment Center near Wilmington. He also authorized Anders to drive to and from work, in the course of employment and to the Laurel Oaks center upon proof of purchase of high risk insurance.

Anders received a $50 fine, plus costs for the other violation. He was cited by Washington C.H. police officers on July 23.

A Bloomingburg man was found guilty of driving while under suspension during another hearing Thursday. Richard E. Harris, 35, of Bloomingburg, was fined $100 and court costs for the offense, but will be allowed to drive to and from work and in the course of employment provided he show proof of high risk insurance.

He was cited on July 26, by Ohio Highway Patrol officers.

Three persons also signed waivers for traffic violations during the court's proceedings Thursday.

Akron men plan organization to support utility companies

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Three Akron men have started an organization to give support to public utilities companies.

While the general public seems to be increasingly skeptical of the utilities, the Ohio Association of Utility Investors plans to lobby for utility interests.

Organizers hope to attract utility company stockholders as members in the group.

The organization was started by Robert Weisberger, assistant manager of the Akron office of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields; Alan L. Siff, attorney and consultant for Interstate Merchandise Corp., and Ronald C. Allan, an attorney. All three are stockholders of Ohio Edison Co.

The group claims to be independent of the utilities but Ohio Edison paid for the first mailing to solicit memberships. Out of 40,000 persons who were sent brochures by Ohio Edison last month, about 550 have requested memberships, Weisberger said.

In recent weeks, other utilities also have sent copies of the group's brochure to stockholders.

Weisberger said that while the association's interests may be the same as the utility companies, the association hopes to set the lead for companies to follow.

He says since the group owns stock in utilities, they should be setting policy guidelines for the companies.

He feels the objectives of company officers and the organization should be the same. "They'd better be doing something to enhance our investment or what good are they?" Weisberger said.

He said the organization is patterned after a group in California that has about 10,000 members. Although it is aiming at utility stockholders, the association will accept other interested persons as members for an annual dues charge of $5, Weisberger said.

Membership in the association will provide persons with regular mailings on governmental regulations affecting utilities, according to Weisberger. He says he expects the group to intervene occasionally during government action affecting utilities just as consumer and environmental groups do.

Navy drops bid on court martial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Public sympathy for two Navy enlisted women who were photographed shoeless at a Navy dress formation apparently has persuaded the service to abandon plans to court martial the women.

Photographs of the women standing at the rear of a formation of hundreds of North Island Naval Air Station sailors appeared recently in a San Diego newspaper, leading to a Navy announcement Monday that the women were being placed on report for being out of uniform.

Other Navy women standing under a hot sun at the lengthy change-of-command ceremony also had removed their high heel pumps, but since they were not in the photograph the Navy said it was unable to identify them. The names of the two it did identify have not been released.

But Thursday, after receiving a flood of protests from women around the country, both civilian and military, the Navy said it had decided not to subject the women to trials and, if convicted, up to 30 days at hard labor.

Instead, the women got a simple warning not to repeat the offense, according to Capt. David Harlow, commander of North Island.

Timely tips for yard, garden

September good time to spruce up lawn

By JOHN P. GRUBER
County Extension Agent

September is just around the corner and that's a good time to spruce up the lawn and home landscape in preparation for winter, and, for next season.

September is an excellent time to establish a new lawn by seeding or sodding. It's also a good time to repair some of those bare spots in an existing lawn.

If you are about to establish a new lawn from seed take the following points into consideration: (1) Rough grade the area to be seeded, allow settling to occur and re-grade where necessary; (2) Apply lime and fertilizer according to soil test results (3) Prepare seed bed by tilling or plowing and disking. (4) Remove any rocks or debris (5) Allow the freshly worked soil to settle and then apply starter fertilizer. Gently rake into the soil. (6) Seed using high quality lawn seed - don't spare on the cost. (7) Rake or otherwise lightly cover the seed (8) Apply a mulch and water to start seed germination.

Fall is also a good time for a general treatment with 2, 4-D for control of dandelion and other persistent broadleaves in the lawn. Since bluegrass is a cool season grass it will be growing good this fall and will fill in bare spaces left by the weeds destroyed before crabgrass germination next spring. Also, desirable plants susceptible to 2, 4-D injury (most flowers, vegetables, shrubs, and trees) are less likely to be injured in the fall than in spring or summer.

Fall fertilization of lawns will help to improve the lawn quality and help to combat weeds next spring with a thicker lawn. A recommended fertilizer program for common Kentucky Bluegrass and similar lawns is: September 1-15 apply two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet in a complete fertilizer of 3-1-1 or a 3-1-2 ratio or equivalent. May and July - apply one-half of the amount suggested above.

It's a good idea to also fertilize shrubs at least once a year to keep them healthy and growing.

Ohio should promote existing industries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University economist says the state should concentrate on keeping existing business in Ohio rather than concentrating on attracting new firms.

In an analysis of development strategies for the Ohio economy published in the university's July issue of Bulletin of Business Research, Wilford L'Esperance said that approximately 45 per cent of Ohio's gross state product comes from the manufacturing sector, making the state vulnerable to recessions.

He says that new industries should be encouraged to come to Ohio but the state's existing firms "are still the single largest source of new business and new job opportunities."

L'Esperance said one of the means of promoting both the growth of existing firms and the establishment of new firms is through a favorable state tax policy and the creation of pools of venture capital for new firms.

For deciduous shrubs, use a 5-10-5, 10-6-4, 8-8-8 or equivalent analysis fertilizer at the rate of 2-4 pounds per 100 square feet of area; narrowleaf evergreen, 10-6-4, 5-10-5 or equivalent at rate of one-half to one pound per large shrub; and broadleaf evergreens 5-10-5, 4-12-4 or other specially formulated broadleaf evergreen fertilizer at 2-4 pounds per 100 square feet of bed area. The amount may be split into 2 applications, one in the spring and the other after flowering.

Thatch can cause lawn problems. Increased disease susceptibility, reduced aeration, reduced water and fertilizer movement, and decreased grass plant rooting may result from excess thatch accumulation.

Thatch is a heavy layer of living and dead stems, roots and leaves which accumulate on the soil surface in lawns. Thatch should be removed whenever the layer is 0.5 inch or more thick. Soil should be moist for better thatch removal and plant regrowth. Limited experience indicates that early fall is probably the best time for removing thatch because of less competition from annual grasses.

Dodgers lose to Pirates

Reds win, plot strategy

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, counting on a late season slump by the Los Angeles Dodgers, see a glimmer of hope in repeating as National League Champions for the third straight year.

"We've got a shot at winning it," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson after the Reds swept the second of a two-game series from the New York Mets, 3-2.

"No, make that the Dodgers have a shot at losing it to us" in the Western Division, said Anderson. Cincinnati cut the LA lead to 8½ and the magic number remains 27. Any combination of Cincinnati losses or Dodgers victories totalling 27 would give the division to LA.

"This weekend is the key to our season," said Anderson, turning his back on the disappointing season thus far. "We've got six games with the Phillies in nine days. We've got to win four of them and we have to go seven out of our next 10."

Anderson said he hopes to accomplish this by using Tom Seaver, "our big guy," every fifth day.

"If we can cut their (LA) lead to 5½ games by Labor Day, we've got one day off in each of the next three weeks."

Seaver pitches tonight against Steve Carlton and Anderson believes a victory will demoralize Los Angeles. "The score of our game will be up on the Dodgers' score board when they are playing St. Louis, a real hot team, too."

Fred Norman, with relief help from Pedro Borbon in the seventh inning, picked up his 12th victory against 10 defeats and recorded his 1,000th career strikeout. "I thought I pitched one of my best games of the year," said Norman, who gave up a home run to Lenny Randle in the seventh before New York took a 2-1 lead.

"The ball that Randle hit was a high fast ball. I was a little tired and the ball was a little slow," Norman said.

Dave Concepcion's two run single in the seventh gave the victory to the Reds. Johnny Bench reached base on Randle's throwing error and Dan Driessen doubled preceding Concepcion's RBI shot.

The victory was Cincinnati's ninth in the last 12 games.

New York's other run, also in the seventh, came on singles by Steve Henderson and John Milner and a run scoring sacrifice by John Stearns.

Nordhagen hits two homers

White Sox top Orioles 6-4

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox got some power from an unexpected source Thursday night. And it helped them keep pace in the American League West.

Wayne Nordhagen belted his first two major league home runs, driving in four runs as the White Sox defeated Baltimore 6-4. The victory moved Chicago back into second place in the AL West, two percentage points ahead of Texas and Minnesota and three games behind first-place Kansas City.

"My big plus in the minor leagues was driving in runs," said Nordhagen, 29, who spent nine years in places like Kingston of the Carolina League and Oklahoma City in the American Association. "But I don't hit too many home runs. The most I ever hit was 16."

The White Sox do hit a lot of homers — 162 so far this season — but they don't usually rely on Nordhagen for run-production. Except against Baltimore.

"I play against left-handers a lot and they have three left starters," noted Nordhagen, who has gotten six of his 12 runs-batted-in this season against the Orioles. "I hit two curve balls for the homers. I haven't seen any curves since who knows when."

Eric Soderholm, who the White Sox do pay to hit home runs, slugged his 20th of the season and Lerrin LaGrow recorded his 20th save.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston broke a seven-game losing streak with a 9-6 victory over Texas. New York defeated Minnesota 6-4 and Kansas City ran its winning skein to nine with a 9-6 triumph over Milwaukee.

Red Sox 9, Rangers 6

The Red Sox rallied for six runs in the seventh inning to overtake Texas and remain two games behind New York in the AL East. Butch Hobson's 25th homer of the season, a three-run shot in the seventh, and George Scott's run-scoring single and 30th home run were the key hits for Boston.

Yankees 6, Twins 4

New York continued its hot streak, winning its 11th game in the last 12 as Reggie Jackson singled home the winning run and Chris Chambliss doubled home an insurance tally in the eighth inning. Mickey Rivers also singled in a pair of runs and had three hits in the contest, raising his batting average to .334.

New York relief ace Sparky Lyle, 9-4, got the victory while Minnesota bullpen star Tom Johnson, 13-6, was the loser.

Royals 9, Brewers 6

Kansas City's surge continued thanks to John Wathan's first major-league homer, a three-run shot in a six-run third inning. The nine straight triumphs set a club record.

Paul Splittorff, 11-6, got the victory while Jerry Augustine, 11-15, absorbed the defeat.

Lions, Panthers set scrimmages

Washington C.H. and Miami Trace prepare today for Saturday's scrimmages.

The Blue Lions will play in a very tightly controlled scrimmage against Anderson High School at 10 a.m. The Blue and White will run a series of plays from the same starting point each time, occasionally trying to move all the way down the field. Also on the agenda will be some goal line plays and kicking. The offense and defense will alternate after about every 10 plays.

Eight people were out of practice today due to illness or injury. Terry Wilson and Steve Qualls, two starters, will see some action tomorrow depending on their recovery from illness.

The offense completed their package of plays Thursday, and timed up the plays. They also ran draws, screens, and drop passes, things the Blue Lions hope to use more than they have in the past.

Coach Paul Ondrus said the staff tried to look at some of the sophomores and other players they haven't looked at a lot so far.

Ed Forsythe and Tommy Shields, are two sophomore quarterbacks that were given an opportunity to run the offense Thursday. Both have potential, Ondrus said, as do the two backup running backs, John Heinz and Bill Rannels.

Coach Ondrus said, "I was impressed with their running ability. We have some good backups for Brickets and Elliott. We hope to give them some playing time tomorrow."

On the offensive line, Chester Hollar performed very well at tackle, and Jim Matson, a junior who is in his first season at Washington C.H. was very impressive as an offensive guard and linebacker.

"Matson's a good backup man. I'm impressed with the way he plays football," Ondrus said.

Ondrus is pleased with Bruce Cupp, a senior who never played high school football. "Cupp will be our starting tight end. He catches passes and blocks well. He's 6'3", not heavy, but very strong."

The coach, referring to the defense, said, "I hope what I see in practice is what I see tomorrow. Duane Six has done well and Chester Hollar has done a super job this fall."

Ondrus predicts that Six, Hollar and Turner will be a very good defensive team. Hollar weighs about 185 pounds while the other two are both over 200 pounds.

The Miami Trace Panthers worked in a practice that was light on physical conduct in order to freshen legs and muscles for their scrimmage Saturday.

The Panthers are working out in full equipment in the mornings, and in shirts, helmets and jerseys in the afternoon.

Miami Trace worked on timing of plays, offensively and defensively. The teams on both sides of the football are working on passing in the morning and running in the afternoon.

Coach Fred Zechman said, "The kids had a lot of enthusiasm this morning. They're looking forward to playing somebody different. They're tired of hitting the same old people all the time. We'll go full go each way and we'll get a good look at the team."

Zechman said the Panthers always try to scrimmage teams that are bigger in school size and in physical size. Saturday's scrimmage will be the first of three for Miami Trace.

Cards play host to Cincy Bengals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For a National Football League with an excess of ammunition, the St. Louis Cardinals are drawing an embarrassing number of blanks.

The Cardinals, who have scored only two touchdowns and are winless in three games, will try to reduce the misfires when they play host to the Cincinnati Bengals in another NFL preseason game Saturday night.

A Cincinnati attack ramrodded by quarterback Ken Anderson is of less concern to St. Louis Coach Don Coryell than his own malfunctioning offense.

"We haven't had a lot of high points with three losses, but the defense is playing well," said Coryell following a 19-10 Cards setback against the Cleveland Browns last week.

"The thing that still bothers us is that we don't take advantage of our scoring opportunities," he added, "and that was one of our biggest problems last year."

Jim Hart, who has played only three quarters to date, will quarterback the Cards offense for two periods and afterward give way to Steve Pisarkiewicz, the team's top draft choice.

"It's like you've given half an effort," said Hart after he was limited to 30 minutes of playing time and a one-yard touchdown pass to Wayne Morris against Cleveland. "The second half is usually a good one for us."

In addition to a sizable contribution from Hart, the keys to a better St. Louis offense include running back Terry Metcalf, who has carried only eight times for 26 yards, and wide receiver Ike Harris, who has caught but four passes for 54 yards.

Cincinnati's top cogs have fared better. Anderson and Reeves have combined for 39 pass completions in 53 attempts, and rookie running back Pete Johnson has a rushing net of 98 yards.

"The Bengals are a team that could be in the Super Bowl," said Coryell. "They show you a lot of offense and they execute well. Our defense will be pushed."

Browns 14, Bears 7

Sipe outduels Phipps

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Phipps was supposed to be the story Thursday night, but Brian Sipe, Greg Pruitt and a host of Cleveland Browns stole the thunder.

Sipe connected on a pair of first-half touchdown passes, Pruitt raced for 53 yards on 12 carries in his first appearance of the year and the Browns chalked up a 14-7 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Phipps, the former Cleveland star now playing quarterback for the Bears, was almost helpless in his first meeting with his ex-teammates. He completed just three of 13 passing attempts for 29 yards and was sacked five times in front of the fans who so often watched his frustration in six previous years of pro football.

"I don't know whether I hurried myself or not," Phipps explained sadly. "When I'm rushed I have a tendency not to wait and let the lanes open up."

"But I didn't think this would happen, and it did," he added. "Why here?"

Meanwhile, Sipe was engineering two long scoring drives, capped by a nine-yard pass to Reggie Rucker with 21 seconds left in the first period, and a four-yard strike by Larry Poole with 43 seconds left in the half.

Pruitt, suffering through most of training camp with a muscle pull in the buttocks, was a surprise entry into the game in the third period. His spirited running helped the Browns move the ball all the way to the Bears' three before cornerback Allan Ellis ended Cleveland's only real second half scoring threat with an interception in the end zone.

But Giants top St. Louis 4-2

Brock steals twice; 1 shy of Cobb

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Gary Alexander almost went into the trivia book with Al Downing, Ralph Branca and Tracy Stallard.
Alexander, the San Francisco catcher, was behind the plate Thursday night when Lou Brock stole his 25th and 26th bases of the season to increase his career mark to 891 and pull within one of the major league record set by Ty Cobb.

"I thought about the situation last night (Wednesday) because I knew I was going to be playing," said the rookie catcher. "But I really didn't mind. He is going to set the record sooner or later. I'm just glad it wasn't off me."

For non-trivia buffs, Downing, Branca and Stallard are all pitchers. Downing gave up Hank Aaron's 715th career run, which broke Babe Ruth's career mark. Branca served up Bobby Thompson's celebrated home run in the final game of the 1951 playoffs to give the New York Giants the National League pennant. Stallard was on the mound when Roger Maris hit his 61st home run in 1961 to break Ruth's single-season mark.

"The crowd tried to intimidate me by yelling at the top of its lungs," said Alexander.

In the first inning, the 38-year-old Brock singled. Two pitches later he stole second. He attempted to add third base to his theft total and was two-thirds of the way when Garry Templeton fouled off a 2-2 pitch.

A double by Keith Hernandez scored Brock with the game's first run.

In the third, Brock beat out an infield hit and stole second again. This time he scored on Templeton's single and the Cards were in front 2-0.

It didn't stay that way long as San Francisco starter John Montefusco, who scattered eight hits through six innings, drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning single as the Giants downed the Cardinals, 4-2.

In other NL games Thursday, Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 2-1, Atlanta defeated Chicago 8-6, Cincinnati nipped New York 3-2 and Houston squeezed by Philadelphia 6-5.

Pirates 2, Dodgers 1
Reliever Larry Demery finished up what John Candelaria started, then gave a fan an unexpected souvenir of Pittsburgh's victory over the Dodgers. "A guy kept calling me a bum," Demery said. "I showed him different."

Reggie Smith, the first batter Demery faced when he entered the game in the sixth inning, smashed his 24th home run of the season, narrowing Pittsburgh's lead to 2-1. That started the fan's heckling.

But Demery held the Dodgers to only one hit and one walk the rest of the way, earning his first save of the season as Candelaria increased his record to 14-4. And, when the game ended, Demery trotted over to stands and tossed the ball to the heckler.

Braves 8, Cubs 6
Rookie Junior Moore smashed his first major league grand slam in the first inning to highlight Atlanta's victory over Chicago. Right-hander Dick Ruthven, 5-10, hurled the first five innings for the Braves, scattering five hits to earn the victory.

Astros 6, Phillies 5
Consecutive home runs by Bob Watson and Joe Ferguson and a run-scoring double by Cesar Cedeño rallied Houston over Philadelphia. It was the Phillies' second straight loss after winning 19 of 20.

The Phils jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning, but Houston scored twice in the second and Watson led off the fourth with his homer. Ferguson followed with his roundtripper on the next pitch.

J. C. Snead leads in golf classic

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Positive thinking, said J.C. Snead, is very important in pro golf.

But, he added with a funny little smile and a slow, Virginia drawl, positive thinking only works when you're getting results.

"Let's say I think I can run through that wall," he said. "Well, I take a run at it. About the 10th time I bounce off that wall, I'm gonna start thinking maybe I can't run through it after all."

Or, he said, there is the matter of attitude: being positive, cheerful, full of smiles, is something to be desired.

"But if you see a guy who's three-putted four holes in a row and he's still smiling, he's either faking or he's crazy as heck."

The putts started falling for the slump-ridden Snead and the door in the wall opened just a bit as he fired a sparkling, eight-under-par 63 for the firstround lead Thursday in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

But Snead — winner of six tour titles and an Australian Open and a key figure on two U.S. Ryder Cup teams — was not ready to pronounce an end to his season-long slump, a slump so severe he had considered quitting the game in which he has won $750,000 in the last six years.

"I've played one good round," said the former pro baseball player. "I don't know if I'm over the hump or not. This stupid game, you never know what's going to happen. Nobody ever really beats it. I'll just have to go out and see what happens."

Snead one-putted 10 times, including eight in a row, as he came within one stroke of the record on the No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club, a revered, 7,007-yard layout in the Carolina sandhill country that yielded some of the lowest scores in its lengthy history.

Leonard Thompson, who grew up about 20 miles away and has played here for almost two decades, was one stroke back after a 64, by three strokes the best he ever has scored here. "I never thought I'd shoot 64 on No. 2," he said.

Hale Irwin and Lon Hinkle had 65s and Mike Morley a 66 in the mild, hazy, almost windless weather.
